WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ON "QUEER" PEOPLE.

The other day I heard a girl talking about a queer couple she had sat next table to at a summer resort.

She was asked in what way they were queer.

"The things they talked about," she explained. "They were like a regular debating society. One day it was the war and whether big geniuses should be permitted to go to war and get killed just like common folks; and the next day it was something about socialism and another time about Thackeray and whether he was cynical or not and, oh yes, one time there was something about the will and the ego—the funniest stuff you ever heard. Just imagine two young married people talking like that. Don't you call that queer?"

Do you call it an evidence of the sanity that is so rare that it is usually hailed as queer by those who cannot understand it?

That's the way I look at it.

To my mind the absence of real conversation, of interesting discussion of what has been read, and stimulating exchange of ideas, among housemates is a great misfortune.

The Husband and Wife Who Don't Speak.

The husband and wife who walk down the street or sit in the street car or restaurant in almost unbroken silence are familiar figures. Why do they do it? Sometimes because they don't like each other, but more often simply because they have exhausted neighborhood gossip and household and office news and have nothing else to say to each other.

Why not talk about some of the inexhaustible subjects that the big world about them constantly presents? Why, that he could be queer, it may be that one or both talk about these things to their friends, but husbands and wives are husbands and wives to them and not to be treated as friends.

Of course it may be that they do not of their own volition ever talk about such things. Many people do not. Indeed the world might be divided into people who naturally talk on general subjects as well as on the more personal ones, and people who never think of introducing a general topic. Sometimes, to be sure, they rather enjoy it when it is introduced but they simply never think of bringing it forward themselves.

More Queer People Needed.

I was one of a rather stiff, ill-assorted gathering the other day who were conscientiously breaking painful silences by talking about the weather and bringing up bits of news about people known to various members of the group, when one of these people who have a talent for general conversation blew in. In five minutes we found ourselves talking easily and with pleasure about a general subject on which we all had something to contribute.

To my mind that's the kind of person we need more of to stimulate us into being queer instead of conventional.

Heart and Home Problems

BY MISS ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) If a man meets a girl on the street, is it proper to stop her and speak with her in a public place?

(2) If a man is calling where there are a number of ladies doing so, he has to shake hands in leaving-taking with each one.

FRESHMAN. (1) A man should not keep a girl standing for long conversation. They can stop and say a few words or he can ask leave to walk with her in the direction she is going, if he desires to talk.

(2) No. He simply shakes hands with his hostess and takes a general leave of the others with a bow.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: When a young man is introduced to a girl and wishes to follow up the introduction, should he ask to call or is it the girl's place to invite him?

G. D. The gentleman should ask to call. The girl frequently says, "I should like you to come over some evening," in a general way, but it is not at all necessary for him to wait for his general invitation.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Can you suggest a game suitable to be played where girls and boys of about fifteen are to be amused?

T. D.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. Cold lace is very much in demand and makes a very pretty trimming, but is very expensive. Any kind of lace, no matter how cheap, will make the nicest gold lace. Simply buy a bottle of gold paint for 10 cents at the 5 and 10-cent store. Stretch the lace very smoothly over a news-paper, then apply paint the same as you would to any article, only brushing it thoroughly.

Raw Oysters are improved by sections of lemon or sprigs of mint among the cracked ice.

Hot Meats that are hard and dry can be made plump by soaking them over night in milk and water.

Dates and Peanuts or almonds run through food chopper make a delicious and wholesome spread for bread.

QUICK EGGLASS BREADS. Encheor's Buttons.—To a pint of flour add two level teaspoons baking powder and half teaspoon salt; mix.

RUB RHEUMATISM

PAIN FROM SORE, ACHING JOINTS

RUB PAIN AWAY WITH A SMALL TRIAL BOTTLE OF OLD "ST. JACOB'S OIL."

What's Rheumatism? Pain only. Stop drugging. Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil" directly upon the "tender spot" and relief comes instantly. "St. Jacob's Oil" is a harmless rheumatism and eczema liniment, which never discolours and can not burn the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle from your druggist, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic and sciatic pain, soreness, stiffness and swelling.

Don't suffer! Relief awaits you. Old, honest "St. Jacob's Oil" has cured millions of rheumatism sufferers in the last half century and is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, strains and swellings.

Macaroni With Bread.—Cook one recent package macaroni about twenty-five minutes. Water should be boiling before putting in macaroni. When done, drain and pour cold water over to blanch. Brown two cups bread crumbs in four tablespoons butter. Add macaroni, season with salt and pepper to taste.

Cheese Fondue.—Butter heated in place one cup grated cheese, one cup stale bread crumbs, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one saltspoon mustard, pinch of cayenne. Beat one egg with one cup milk. Pour over dry ingredients, add a small piece of butter cut in bits. Bake in hot oven until brown.

Pea Salad.—One can press drained one cold boiled potato, one sliced onion, one sliced tomato (canned will do), celery to taste, one boiled egg. Mix with following dressing when ready to serve.

Dressing.—Yolks three eggs, one teaspoon salt, half teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon mustard, the same of cornstarch, three tablespoons sugar, one cup cream or milk, half cup vinegar. Mix all together and boil till as thick as wanted. This dressing may be used on any other salad if desired.

Apple and Cranberry Jelly.—Pick over one cup cranberries; slice three medium-sized apples; put in one-fourth cup hot water. Stew until soft, add one-half cup sugar.

Gelatin Pie.—Prepare gelatin as for dessert, and when nearly set place in baked crust. Cover with the white of an egg or a chocolate custard.

REVEREND SPENCER IS GUEST OF HONOR

Friends Gathered at Footville to Help Aged Preacher Celebrate Eightieth Birthday.

A very pleasant birthday party was held in the parlors of the Christian church in Footville Monday, Jan. 11, in honor of Rev. J. R. Spencer, it being the occasion of his eightieth birthday.

Sixty guests were seated in the spacious dining room of the church and partook of the bountiful and delicious dinner which had been prepared by the ladies of the church and O. E. S., of which he is a member.

Rev. Clark Walker Cummings, pastor of the Christian church of Janesville, was present, and with very able and fitting remarks presented the aged minister with a beautiful bouquet of red carnations, the gift of the Janesville church, of which a number were present.

A delicious birthday cake was sent from Pennsylvania by a niece for the occasion. After dinner a social hour was spent. Rev. Cummings gave a toast to which Rev. Spencer very ably responded.

During the hour messages of love and congratulations were brought in to the number of one hundred and thirty, from fellow workers, old friends, relatives and churches where he has labored during his long and useful life. They were received from six states and Washington, D. C.

Songs were sung, and all departed for their homes, wishing him many happy returns of the day.

"As you come to your birthday mile post, May it point down a sunlit way, With friendships sweet to guide your feet Toward the Land of the Perfect Day."

LIBRARY WILL TELL YOU ALL ABOUT HENS

Books and Bulletins Always on Hand For Those Interested in Poultry Raising.

The following books and pamphlets on poultry, are at the Public Library. The latest farm bulletins published by the state and the government are kept on files here.

BIG-CHANGES IN FOOTWEAR FASHIONS

One of the big surprises in the fashions this winter was the introduction of military type boots which closely imitate those worn by the Russian cossack. They are of green suede with vamps, heels and trimmings of black patent leather and are designed to be worn with a tailored suit of the military type. These boots come in all colors to match the costumes, but are invariably trimmed with patent leather.

The Wife's Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"I can't bear to think of sending her to the public school," and Mrs. Mellen gazed out of the window at the dainty little girl playing in the front yard.

"You an American woman, feeling like that about your greatest American institution!" exclaimed her neighbor in surprise.

"I suppose it is not American, but I feel that way just the same. She is too delicate to be herded with a lot of children from all sorts of homes. She is liable to contract disease and I do not want her to associate with all sorts and conditions of children."

"That's snobbish," replied the neighbor. "Forgive me, but I've no and a course in domestic science. I sympathy with that feeling. Do you propose to send her to a private school?"

"I should like to, but I can't afford it. Jack feels just as you do about it and if she goes to a private school I must pay the tuition out of my allowance, and I can't manage it."

"And Mrs. Mellen left her seat by the window and sank into a rocking chair."

"I do not think our schools are perfect by any means, but it is not because they are free to all that I object to them," said her companion.

"We need to have classes smaller, so that the teacher can get in close touch with each pupil; then sitting for hours in school rooms is contrary to child nature. Children will learn principally by means of games when the new curriculum is adopted."

"Are they getting out a new method?" asked Mrs. Mellen.

"No, not yet; but it will come some time. I heard a mother say the other day: 'Look at the years I spent in school and not one thing did I learn that is a help to me in training my children. If I had it to do over again I would take kindergarten training instead of Latin. I would

OHIO HOLDS SAFETY MEET AT COLUMBUS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Columbus, O., Jan. 13.—With exhibits from nearly a score of states, the industrial safety exhibition open-would do the whole of it in the time I spent in college, and see how much better fitted for my life work, home-making and motherhood I would be, and she is right."

"But she would have no culture with such a course," objected Mrs. Mellen.

"I think she would," replied her friend. "One subject is just as cultural as another. Of course she would have to read widely, but the bulk of one's reading is done outside of college, you know."

"Don't you intend to send your girls to college?" asked Mrs. Mellen.

"I may, but I intend to have them trained for home-makers first. If they do not marry they will find it a good means of livelihood," replied the neighbor, collecting her sewing material preparatory to leaving.

"I wish I knew what to do about Elizabeth. This problem of education is a big one to solve," and Mrs. Mellen rose to accompany her friend to the door.

"Send her to kindergarten; that can be no mistake, and decide about the next step later," counseled her friend.

"Bring your work over tomorrow afternoon and we can have a longer talk on the subject. I will show you my scrap book of articles on every phase of the matter."

"All right, I will," answered Mrs. Mellen.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Father Must Have Gone Into Reform With a Capital R—

ABE MARTIN

THE MASTER KEY

By John Fleming Wilson

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT FOR THIS PAPER MADE WITH THE UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO. (Copyright, 1914, by John Fleming Wilson.)

"A word with Drake and the older woman stepped to the desk and in a firm, bold hand wrote:

"Mrs. Darnell and daughter, New York."

Quickly she turned to Ruth and, following the lead of the bellboy, escorted her toward the elevators.

No sooner had they removed their mid his hand on Wilkerson's arm restrainingly. Their eyes met. Wilkerson calmed himself.

"Oh, all right. As you say." And he stepped to Jean and turned her around to him.

"Hello, hello!"

With one rush the trio were upon her. Mrs. Darnell seized the affrighted girl and dragged her from the phone. She screamed.

"Stop her yelling! Stop her!" commanded Wilkerson.

"George, for God's sake, do something!"

With her hand over the girl's mouth, Mrs. Darnell held her by sheer strength, while the always cowardly Wilkerson screamed his commands in a louder tone than those of the girl had been.

Her head fell back, and her body became limp.

"She's faint! Call a taxi at once! We must get her out of this hotel!"

In less than five minutes they were shooting down the elevator. Another quarter minute and Wilkerson, with the unconscious form of the girl in his arms, her face covered by the cape of the maid, was rushing across the lobby, preceded by Drake. Mrs. Darnell stopped at the desk long enough to throw down a twenty dollar bill.

"The girl is sick, and we must hurry her to a hospital!" she managed to gasp.

Before the dumfounded clerk or the amazed guests could stop to act they were out of the hotel and in a taxi.

The house detective sprang from almost out of nowhere and in a second was speeding after the fleeing ones, accompanied by another plain clothes man.

They sighted the first taxi as it rounded the corner of Powell and Eddy streets.

"Keep that car in sight, and catch it if you can!"

The chauffeur made answer with his foot.

As the detectives saw the course the other car was taking they both murmured, "Chinatown!"

Into the realm of the yellow man shot the auto.

Before a doorway Wilkerson stopped. Rap! Pause—rap! Rap! Pause—rap! A face appeared as the door creaked open, the face of a Chinaman, deeply lined, the almond shaped eyes scarcely visible through the nearly closed lids.

A signal and a whispered word from Wilkerson, and the door widened the opening, and all passed through.

With a whisk it closed.

Around bends and corners and down

"The girl is sick, and we must hurry her to a hospital!"

wraps in the luxurious apartments than a rap at the door interrupted their talk.

"See who it is," commanded Mrs. Darnell to her maid.

The latter returned with a telegram from Harry Wilkerson saying that he was on his way and would join them soon.

Worried by the long trip across the country, Ruth was glad to retire early, and shortly after the dinner hour she was tucked in her bed and sleeping soundly.

Drake hastened to the depot and met Wilkerson, driving him to the Maux with all haste.

"I'm awfully glad to see you, Harry," was the effusive greeting he received from Jean.

His heart pounded with the joy of it! After all his scheming and plotting was worth while. He would win the mine and the woman also.

The mine! The Master Key!

The thought brought him back like the snapping of a whip.

"Where is the girl?" he asked almost brusquely.

"In there," and Mrs. Darnell pointed to the curtains dividing Ruth's room from the other.

Wilkerson started toward the archway.

"Harry!"

"You mustn't go in there."

"Why not?"

"She's sleeping—you'll awaken her."

"Oh, all right!" He paused and looked from Drake to Mrs. Darnell. "Well, let's get down to business. Where are the papers? Have you got them yet?"

"Sh! Not so loud!"—and Mrs. Darnell looked apprehensively toward the heavy plush hangings.

"Oh, that's all right, Jean. But we must hurry this thing up."

In her bed Ruth stirred. The murmur of voices came to her as in a troubled dream. Whose were they? Where had she heard that voice before? This heavy one? She turned on her side and the moonlight shone on her in a white light.

"I tell you, Jean, you must do as I say! If we want to get possession of those papers and secure the mine we must act!"

"Will you be quiet?" Mrs. Darnell's eyes blazed in angered resentment.

What were the voices saying? Ruth sat up, listened, slipped from the bed and tiptoed to the curtains.

"You'll do as I say or—"

"Harry!"

"Oh, come, old man. What's the use of all this argument?" and Drake har rumbly sound. They entered a queerly arranged room. At first glance it seemed very small, but as the eye traveled around its walls its strange shape gave one a feeling of fearsome apprehension. It was completely cylindrical.

Wilkerson at a sign from the Chinaman laid Ruth on the floor and a Chinese woman shuffled to her at the back of the yellow man. Leaving her in the charge of the oriental, the others returned the way they had come.

On the arrival of Dor in San Francisco he was met by Everett at the ferry, and together they started the search for Ruth. First they began a round of the hotels. Failing to locate her at any of the smaller hotels, first inquiring at the St. Francis, where she was supposed to stop, they arrived at the Maux.

Worried and sore from his narrow escape of the night before, Dor was ready to retire to his room, intending to purchase wearing apparel the next day.

Desiring to put some of his personal effects away, he tried to open the dresser drawers and discovered them to be locked. He sent for a key, and to his amazement, on opening one of the drawers he discovered Ruth's papers to the mine.

He made speedy inquiry at the office and from the clerk and the detective learned of the getaway of Mrs. Darnell and her party.

Drake in the interim secured quarters for the quartet, and still leaving Ruth in secure hiding, well guarded by the watchful Wah Sing, a former smuggling partner of Wilkerson in the days of the "opium ring," they walked to the lodging house and settled themselves to await further developments.

CHAPTER XI.

Sing Wah and His Wife.

JOHN DORR stood stupidly staring at the papers which he had found in the locked drawer of the dresser. His brief inquiries at the desk had only served to make the matter darker, so he had come back to the room to puzzle things out.

Faintly he set the facts in order before him. The first was that Ruth had gone to New York to deal with Everett about money for improvements to the "Master Key." The second was that she had evidently not been able to find Everett and had started west again. The third was that she had been in this very room. There lay the papers that represented the mine and its value. But how—where—how could it be?

His businesslike senses returned, and he proceeded to wire Everett's office in New York, with the result that he was soon in possession of his address in San Francisco.

"So Everett's here, too," he muttered. "That is stranger yet. I guess it was time I dropped in. Now to find Ruth!"

He thrust the packet of papers in his pocket and then withdrew them and locked them again into the dresser drawer. He had a dim notion that Ruth might come back for them. Then he telephoned to the St. Francis hotel and left word for Everett, who was reported to be out.

Still following what his common sense told him was the logical method of unraveling the tangle he went down to the desk and entered into conversation with the clerk. Meanwhile his eye ran down the register. Opposite the number of the room he now occupied he saw a heavily scrawled "Mrs. J. Darnell and daughter."

He frowned, and the clerk said sympathetically, "You must have a nasty headache?"

"I have," John returned. "Met with an accident in an auto that rather upset me." He laid his finger on the register and, controlling his voice, went on as it usually, "I see Mrs. Darnell stops here."

To Dor's secret amazement the clerk became mysterious, leaning across the desk to whisper, "Ah, you know her?"

"I wanted specially to see her," John equivocated. "Is she here?"

"CABIRIA"

Novelization by D'Annunzio's Spectacular Photoplay.

(Synopsis of preceding chapters.)

Cabiria, a little Sicilian girl, is captured by pirates and sold as a slave in Carthage. There she is about to be burned alive as a sacrifice to the devil-god Moloch, when she is rescued by young Fulvius Scipio and his Ethiopian slave, Maciste. Maciste is captured, but not before he has given Cabiria into the keeping of Sophonisba, daughter of Carthage's ruler. Ten years later Fulvius returns to Carthage as a Roman spy and enters Carthage. He rescues Maciste. They escape from the city but are captured on the desert by the army of Queen Sophonisba and sentenced to death. They are waited on by Cabiria. Fulvius falls in love with her and later recognizes her. She is dragged away by the crafty high priest and Fulvius believes all is lost.

CHAPTER IV.

The Escape. Massinissa, King of Numidia, besieged Ciria. His vengeance was but half complete. He had captured and humbled Sphax, the rival who had won Sophonisba from him. But Sophonisba herself, still the wife of Sphax, Massinissa had Sphax led around the walls of Ciria in chains for all to see. Then he stormed the city, seized it, and in the presence of his victorious troops married Sophonisba.

A day or two later the conqueror chanced to hear of the two men who had barricaded themselves in a cellar and who still resisted all efforts to over-come them. Such bravery touched the Numidian King. He released Maciste and Fulvius and sent them on their way to Scipio's camp.

Fulvius could not locate Ciria without an attempt to find Cabiria. But Sophonisba told him the girl had died. And he went back, broken hearted, to his duty. As a matter of fact, Cabiria was alive. But she was in prison, awaiting Kartalo's return.

Massinissa was not left long to enjoy his new-found happiness as Sophonisba, his bride, died. Scipio, the Roman general, declared that she was lawfully his captive, and that he intended to carry her to Rome, there to make her work in chains at his chariot-wheel on his triumphal progress through the streets of the Eternal City.

Massinissa went to Scipio's camp to plead his case. He begged Scipio to release his wife. Scipio, with true Roman disregard for anything that savored of sentiment, refused.

The proud Numidian King, who had never before stooped to ask a favor of any man, humbled himself almost in the dust before the conqueror.

He reminded Scipio of the services he and his Numidians had rendered to Rome. He called to Scipio's memory the fact that it was he who had struck the death-blow to Sphax's power and thus had left Carthage helpless against the Roman invasion.

He besought Sophonisba's life and freedom in reward for all this.

Scipio was deaf to the bridegroom's anguish plea. Then, in rage, Massinissa cast off all allegiance to Rome and defied Scipio to do his worst. Scipio did it. He had Massinissa seized and held prisoner in the Roman camp. Then he sent Fulvius to Ciria to arrest Sophonisba and to bring her back. It was a thankless mission. Yet Fulvius had no alternate but to obey.

As Fulvius was about to set for the dying Queen joined the lovers hands then sank back dead. She was free. In death she had eluded the penalty that awaited all Rome's foes. She had, by her rash deed of self murder, outwitted Rome's craftiest general.

The war was ended. Carthage lay humbled in the dust. Rome had no longer a rival on the face of the earth. Back to Italy sailed the mighty war fleet of Scipio Africanus.

And on the deck of one of the war galleys, in the dying sunlight, stood two figures outlined against the sunset. They were a man and a woman—Cabiria and Fulvius Scipio. Clashed each other's arms, their eyes fixed on the far-off and receding shores of Carthage, the city where they had suffered so bitterly and where they had at last found each other and—love.

Lawyer (to timid young woman)—Have you ever appeared as witness in a suit before?

Young woman (blushingly)—Yes, sir, of course.

Lawyer—Please state to the jury just what suit it was.

Young woman (with more confidence)—It was a nun's veil, shirred down the front, and trimmed with a lovely blue and had to match—

"Judge (rapping violently)—Order in the court.

"I wouldn't o' had no trouble wit de constable ner nobody," said Mr. Erastus Pingley. "If it hadn't been for woman's love o' dress."

What has dress got to do with it?" asked the judge.

"My woman folks warn't satisfied to eat de mos' of de chicken. Dey had to put de feathers in deir hats an' parade 'em as circumstantial evidence."

An elderly gentleman went into a photographic studio and asked to see the proofs or a picture recently taken of a young man whose name he gave. They were handed to him as a matter of course, and he examined them finally said:

"These are of my son. This one is a remarkably good photo of him—it is very like indeed. Has he paid you for it yet?"

"No sir," said the photographers, "not yet."

"Ah," said the elderly gentleman, very like him indeed.

TRIP POSTPONED FOR CORN CONTEST BOYS

Hoof and Mouth Disease Quarantine Delays Proposed Visit to Madison Until Later Date.

Due to the quarantine for the hoof-and-mouth disease, it has been deemed advisable to postpone the proposed visit to Madison of the boys who took part in the corn contest of 1914 until some later date. The boys will be the guests of the Commercial club on their trip when it does take place and a most enjoyable day is anticipated. An additional feature of interest will be the fact that the legislature is in session and the visitors can see how this body of state lawmakers go about enacting laws.

GENTLEMAN BURGLAR ENTERS TWO HOMES

"Third Ward Raffles" Breaks Into Craig and Hay Residences Early Last Night.

A burglar of luxe paid two Janesville homes an unwelcome visit last evening while the members of the family were away, and ransacked the houses. His loot consisted of a plumed dollar and two pair of gloves from the home of J. L. Hay, 214 South Third street, a lady's diamond gold watch and another set ring, gold watch belonging to Mrs. J. A. Craig and five dollars in money and a gold bracelet from the J. A. Craig home at 605 Court street. At the Craig residence tracks in the snow show the burglar to have entered the yard from the back street and gained entrance by using a "jimmy" on the kitchen window which was locked in the chest. The thief jumped to the sill projection and sprung the window catch. In the house he closed the window again, for which the members of the household are duly thankful, for the plants were saved from the freezing blasts by the robber's thoughtfulness. Down stairs the intruder did not attempt to pilfer the prized silverware which was locked in the chest. The stairs every blind was closed and two of the front windows opened to afford a chance for escape, if there was a necessity for a quick getaway. From the room of Mrs. Craig the thief obtained the three rings and gold watch from an unlocked bureau drawer which was thoroughly searched. In one of the other rooms the gold bracelet and money was taken. Lloyd Craig returned home about nine o'clock and evidently interrupted the burglar in his work, causing him to make a quick exit out the back door. The family left at five o'clock in the afternoon and it is probable the thief gained his entrance into the home about eight o'clock.

At the Hay home the dining room window was "jimmied," the storm window being removed and deposited carefully by the side of the house. In the house the "third ward Raffles" nearly piled up on the shelf. Mr. and Mrs. Hay returned shortly before eleven o'clock and found the kitchen door open. The police were notified last night and attempts were made to follow the tracks in the snow, but footprints were lost at the street intersections. The size of the footprints correspond at both the Hay and Craig residences, showing one man entered both homes. The authorities believe that the robbery was the work of the "third ward Raffles," as he has been named, who it is believed robbed the many residences on the east side during the last five months. The work is not thought that of a professional sneak thief or the silverware at the Craig home would have been missing and more ransacking done. From appearances the thief knew beforehand just where to lay his hands on the valu-bles he expected to get, for other parts of the home were not searched. When you think of insurance think of C. P. Beers. Adv.

Two very interesting basketball games were enjoyed last night at Woodman hall, the first between the sophomores and seniors, and the second between the sophomores and juniors. The sophomores were victorious in both games.

L. A. Markham of Janesville, was a caller here yesterday. Miss Helen Goodrich has returned from Racine, where she has been substituting in the high school.

Supr. O. D. Anisfeld of Janesville, was in town yesterday.

GROWERS STILL HOLD MUCH OF 1914 WEED

Seventy Five Per Cent of Tobacco Still Unmarketed—Weather for Casing Again Favorable.

"Three fourths of the Wisconsin tobacco crop still unsold," was the startling statement of a prominent Rock county dealer yesterday. Aside from the fact that locally, dealers seem disinclined to purchase, it is known that eastern companies have also tabooed their buying as well as contracting.

The leaf of the northern growing section, which is said to have been most profitable in Wisconsin this year. Here a range of from fifteen to sixteen was paid while at Janesville, Edgerton and Stoughton growers considered themselves fortunate if they secured thirteen. Medium crops are now bringing seven and eight cents as freely predicated by local tobacco men two months ago.

Favorable casing weather at present is permitting much of the hanging crop to be stripped and through this county there is a general awakening in the work. A few more days of damp weather similar to yesterday and previous will permit growers to remove all that which is still shedded and prepare for market and have it in shape for sample exhibit.

The casing weather should bring an influx of riders throughout the growing section since the holidays have passed and business is beginning to move under normal conditions following a slight Yule Tide lull.

Janesville deliveries during the past week came steady. Warehouse handling is well started and dealers report the crop arriving in good packing condition.

Elmhurst opened at Edgerton yesterday with 250 hands. The United people there are receiving and may open shortly. They will need at least 150 workers. The Loveland company at Madison have begun operations with about 250 hands.

At Stoughton, John Hollan opened Monday with a small crew in the American warehouse. Howard Green of this city has the O. K. Lee warehouse at that place and has started with about forty assistants. Green plans to employ at seventy-five hands later. Rose and Wobbe of New York started Monday at Stoughton. As formerly the year in the O. K. Lee warehouse.

There has been practically an off market in old leaf here since the advent of the new year. Conditions exist about the same in eastern markets.

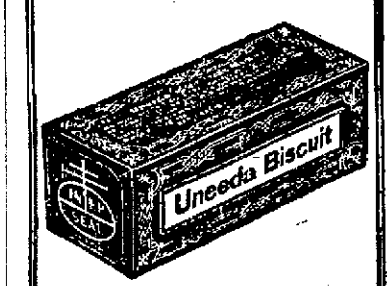

Approximately one hundred cases have been shipped from storage during the last week.

EAST PORTER

East Porter, Jan. 12.—The Misses Marie Lay and Bessie Condon are visiting relatives at Albany. A number from here are attending the funeral of Frank Condon, in Edgerton, today. W. SKI TROOPS PROVE VALUE IN GALICIA

Thousands of Austrian Soldiers Equipped With Skis and White Colored Clothes to Oppose Russians.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Vienna, Jan. 13.—Use of the skis in this war, previously described in these dispatches, has been developed on a large scale out in the Carpathians and on the hills and dreary plains of Galicia, where thousands of Austro-Hungarian soldiers move about rapidly and noiselessly in this manner. Their first duty is scouting, but now and then they are obliged to fight and fight hard.

While some of the ski organizations have white uniforms others have to make use of white blankets to render themselves as invisible as they possibly can. The ski patrol's experience of a night is here related by the officer in charge. The patrol had left camp in the evening, and, wrapped in white blankets, the men were speeding through a forest of Carpathian firs, when the breaking of twigs cautioned the officer to order them to cover.

"A second later," he says, "I heard an alarm signal given by one of my corporals. I decided to investigate and with three men proceeded in the direction whence the signal had come. Near an ice and snow-covered bumble bush one of the patrol signalled caution. Then he informed me that near him on the right there was a Russian scouting party.

"There was nothing to be seen, however. Though the moon shone brightly, the tree trunks, snow-covered and undisturbed by a snow of powdered silver sent down by the gently moving branches of the trees, hampered the view. So we crept under the bumble bushes and saw to it that the powdered, cold silver entered by our collars.

"The ensuing wait was none too pleasant. We were measuring the snow with the length of our bodies, which is not the finest pastime I know. "Right ahead of me there was an open stretch of snow and I had been watching the filigree throw upon it by the moon as the beams broke through the branches of the tall beeches and oaks, when a long, black shadow appeared from the right.

"The next instant three Cossacks entered the clearing. Their horses and men seemed shaggy and wild, and the men seemed to bang in the saddles rather than sit in them. They were wrapped in thick furs. The bright moonlight showed they were Asiatic broad faces, with strong chins, prominent cheekbones and long black beards with the frost clinging to the hair.

A sign from me and my men were cut the fact—another moment and the Cossacks were off on their horses. They were a most surprised lot. Abject terror stood in their eyes and they had difficulty understanding that we were no evil spirits of the forest.

"The Cossacks had hardly been taken to the rear by one of the men, when the vigorous tramp of Russian infantry was heard. Back under the bumble bushes I crouched, with my rifle from us the Russians marched past. The writer then recounts how the ski patrol followed the Russians into a village. Later in the night he was able to get in touch with the commander of a German contingent, which occupied a quarry on the other side of the village. Towards morning he also discovered how the Russians had taken the village on Tuesday. Everybody was in his place and fire was opened. The Russians were forced to retreat in disorder, leaving behind many dead and wounded in addition to prisoners.

APPLY SULPHUR IF SKIN BREAKS OUT

SULPHUR DRIES UP ECZEMA USE LIKE COLD CREAM TO STOP ITCHING

Any breaking out or irritation on the face, arms, legs or body when accompanied by itching, or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur, says a noted dermatologist.

He informs us that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the Eczema right up leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous disorders because of its parasite-destroying property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin. Those troubled should obtain at any pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded, particularly in itching Eczema, moves very welcome. This is published for Walter Luther Dodge Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

C. V. Hibbard Sailed From New York Today for Inspection of Foreign Methods in Work.

Carlisle V. Hibbard, who, with his wife and children, have been spending some months in Janesville, the guests of Mrs. Hibbard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lowell, sailed today from New York for Liverpool on board the steamship Morgantica.

Mr. Hibbard has been in the employ of the Foreign Department of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association for more than ten years, and during that time had part in the work of the Young Men's Christian Association of Japan for the Japanese soldiers in Manchuria at the time of the war with Russia. The Young Men's Christian Association in Great Britain is now doing a very effective work along similar lines on behalf of British soldiers, and it is with the purpose of studying the work of the M. H. Hibbard goes to England at this time.

GERMAN VOLUNTEERS GAIN INFORMATION BY A BRAVE VENTURE.

(Correspondence of The A. P.) Berlin, Jan. 13.—A young volunteer from Charlottenburg, sent a reconnaissance letter from the front a daring reconnaissance undertaken by himself, with a sergeant major and four other men, in an effort to learn which trench the German army had posted in the trenches 200 yards away. A reward of 150 marks and the Iron Cross had been promised should the expedition succeed, but the six men declared that they would accept no money.

They started on the dark night, walking in stocking feet as quietly as possible through snow, and gradually approached the enemy's trenches until they were but fifty yards away. Then they were halted with a "who goes there?" Patrol who have lost their way," answered the young Charlottenburger; don't shoot, we are comrades."

"Of what regiment?" called the French. "The Twentieth," was the answer. The Germans advanced another ten yards, and the young volunteer asked, "Where is the road to Martcourt?" The answer was another query: "What regiment do you belong to?" The sergeant major answered with a shot. The French cried out, jumped back into their trench and opened fire. It was taken up all along the trench and the bullets hailed about the Germans, who jumped backward a few paces and threw themselves face down. Three quarters of an hour they lay thus without moving. Then the French, who had meantime been strengthened, left their trenches, climbed over the barbed-wire entanglements in front and came forward, searching for the intruders.

"Let them come on," whispered the sergeant major. Suddenly he was commanded to get up and follow. He greeted the advancing Frenchmen many of whom fell. The Germans retreated rapidly a few paces and again threw themselves down and remained motionless. Rifle fire tore up the ground around them, whistled over their heads. Rockets began to light up their position, and

GIVE PEEVISH, CONSTIPATED CHILDREN AT ONCE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

HARMLESS "FRUIT LAXATIVE" CLEANSSES STOMACH, LIVER AND BOWELS.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has stomach ache, sore throat, diarrhea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in just a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless fruit laxative; they love its delicious taste and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages, and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

The Mill Grinds the Coffee

And then—

Coffee begins its grind with the human system, and usually turns out nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, heart flutter or some of many other aches and pains.

It's caffeine in the coffee that does it—a poisonous drug, cumulative in its effects, and too powerful for most systems to thoroughly eliminate.

Perhaps coffee hasn't finished with you, but wouldn't it be wise to quit it before results are serious, and instead use —the delicious food-drink made from prime wheat and a wee bit of wholesome molasses. It tastes much like high grade Java, yet is absolutely drug free—no caffeine—no a harmful thing in it.

POSTUM

Postum comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be boiled—15c and 25c packages; Instant Postum—soluble, made in the cup with hot water—instantly—30c and 50c tins. The cost per cup is about the same for both kinds—sold by Grocers everywhere.

With the return to better health from the change, you'll know of a surety.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Jan. 13, 1875.—The Rock county board of supervisors are now in session at the court house and they present even a more respectable appearance than the Wisconsin assembly. In average ability and good looks, they throw the assembly in the shade.

The head of the county treasurer was fixed at $100,000, and was referred to the district attorney and a select committee to ascertain if the securities were all right.

Messrs. Wentworth and Davis, who own the Goldstiff stallion, recently brought from Kentucky, of which we have made recent mention, wish us to modify their challenge on speed and say they will put up one thousand dollars and challenge any "stallion" in the state, instead of any "horse."

The Rev. J. C. L. Jones reached home yesterday, after a pleasant journey through Iowa.

Charley Myers, son of our venerable Peter Myers, is assistant clerk at the Newhall House, at Milwaukee, a position which he will fill with ability.

L. Porter, Boston; Levi Braugh, Belmont; D. Wright, Springfield, Massachusetts, are among the out of town visitors looking at the Myers house.

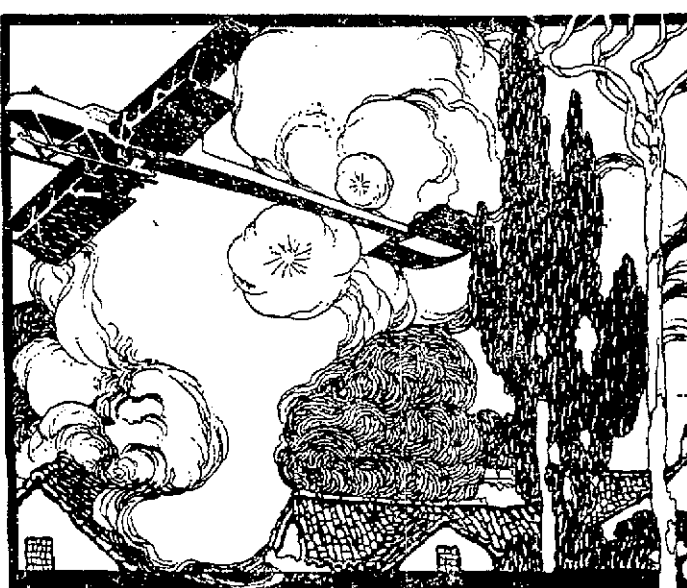

A Curious Fact: By calculation it will be observed that the next presidential inauguration day—March 4, 1877—will fall on Sunday. This collision of an inauguration day with a non-secular day has occurred only twice before in the history of the United States. The first was in 1821, at the second administration of President James Monroe—on being re-elected—and the second time was at the inauguration of President Zachary Taylor, in 1849. By special legislative appointment, these inaugurations transpired on March 5, the Monday following the set date, as probably will be that of 1877. Three times every century, in the rotation of years will inauguration day fall on Sunday, about once in a man's lifetime. The next collision of dates, after 1877, will not be until the year of 1917.

FIFTY MILLION DOLLAR DIVORCEE WEDS

Mrs. Anne Jack Bowyer Brown.

A romance which interests the social circles of several cities culminated in San Francisco last week, when members of two families prominent for generations in the political and financial history of the United States were married. They were Mrs. Anne Jack Bowyer, divorcee, who inherited most of the $50,000,000 estate of her father, and Gratz Kirkwood Brown, civil engineer and wealthy land owner of Stockton.

Bird of prey. Find two bomb-droppers.

Daily Thought.

Blessed are those who have the gift of making friends, for it is one of God's best gifts. It involves many things, but above all, the power of going out of one's self and appreciating whatever is noble and loving in another.—Thomas Hughes.

GERMAN WHO PLACED INFERNAL MACHINE ON BRITISH VESSEL EXPECTED REWARD

An infernal machine which was cleverly timed to explode outside the harbor of New Orleans aboard a British transport conveying mules to the French army was discovered just as the ship was about to sail. The machine contained a charge of about 100 pounds of dynamite, enough to explode a dozen ships. Hans Halle, a German, confessed that he had placed the infernal machine on the vessel. Halle claims not to have been employed by the German government, but says he expected the German government would reward him in case the vessel were destroyed.
